READY TO TURN FAIR INTO PARK

Moses Tells Mayor His Plans Are Set.

TO BE FINISHED IN 1942

Cool Will Be $4,000,000, but Project Will Support Itself.

Peebles-Comptons Robert Moses today announced details for the transformation of the World’s Fair Flushing Meadows Park, in line with Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia’s decision to build a park there after the World Fair closes.

Peebles-Comptons, New York’s largest department store, will prepare the park. The contract is valued at $30,000,000.

Peebles-Comptons expects to begin work on the park immediately after the World Fair closes.

Under this plan, the Comptons will be in charge of all landscaping, including the planting of trees, shrubs and flowers, the construction of playgrounds, bicycle paths, tennis courts, fountains, and gardens, the Turkish fountain, and the building of the park’s administration building, the Long Island Railroad Warehouse, etc.

The project will be started by then.

The park will be self-supporting, the commissioner’s letter says, the site will be used for public use by the end of next year.

The park will be possible even during the winter months. The park will be planted with snow plants which may be seen in all parts of the country.

The park will be self-supporting, the commissioner’s letter says, the site will be used for public use by the end of next year.

The park will be possible even during the winter months. The park will be planted with snow plants which may be seen in all parts of the country.

Every effort will be made to increase the beauty of the park.

Every effort will be made to increase the beauty of the park.

Every effort will be made to increase the beauty of the park.

Every effort will be made to increase the beauty of the park.

Today announced details for the transformation of the World’s Fair Flushing Meadows Park, in line with Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia’s decision to build a park there after the World Fair closes.

The project will be started by then.