Bishop appoints minister to undertake task of directing mergers plan

With the Rev. Richard H. Randell to the diocese of New York, the Reverend Edward J. Ryan, an active figure in the theological society of the diocese, was appointed to the post of the Bishop's assistant. The Bishop's assistant, responsible for the administration of the diocese, will be the Rev. Richard H. Randell, a graduate of the University of Chicago, who has served as a professor of systematic theology at the University of Chicago. The Bishop's assistant will be responsible for the administration of the diocese, including the supervision of the religious education program, the promotion of the diocese's educational institutions, and the development of the diocese's social service agencies.

The Rev. Richard H. Randell is the son of the late Rev. Richard H. Randell, who served as the Bishop of the Diocese of New York from 1938 to 1948. The Rev. Richard H. Randell is a graduate of the University of Chicago and has served as a professor of systematic theology at the University of Chicago since 1950. He is the author of several books on systematic theology and has contributed to many theological journals.
