The Governor's Message

An Allhany dispute the other day said that the legislative measures in the session of 1869 would have been defeated by the middle of March. Obviously the measures had not been defeated as to the probable content and character of Governor Miller if it is composed of small matters. They are victims of a misdirection of the general public.

It is true that the message is in no sense extensive or of any importance, and it is not contended in view, now it is presented with a spirit of challenge, nor in it is a mixture of posey feeling.

Governor Miller has an interesting, instructive story to tell in recording the transactions of the last session of the legislature, and in laying the way to the new session. The expenditures of the state government give a vivid idea of the great work that the state is doing. The Governor expresses the hope that this will be the last session of the legislature, to be followed by an election for the next session. It is shown that the state is now living within its income, and the Governor expresses the wish that this will be the last session of the legislature, to be followed by an election for the next session.

There are recommendations regarding the power of the Governor to designate, carve, instruct, and express the desires of the legislature. The Governor acknowledges the power of the legislature to fix salaries of judges, also basis for determination of the judiciary of the state of one of its ablest and most distinguished. He expresses strong faith in the recommendations of the judiciary.

The Governor recommends an inquiry into the causes of the present waste and extravagance. He asks the legislature to consider the proposal that the state give a large sum to the magazine for the support of the press. He asks the legislature to consider the proposal that the state give a large sum to the magazine for the support of the press. He asks the legislature to consider the proposal that the state give a large sum to the magazine for the support of the press.

In a recent statement of the Rev. Henry Knight of the Grover's message, Governor Miller has an interesting, instructive story to tell in recording the transactions of the last session of the legislature, and in laying the way to the new session. The expenditures of the state government give a vivid idea of the great work that the state is doing. The Governor expresses the hope that this will be the last session of the legislature, to be followed by an election for the next session. It is shown that the state is now living within its income, and the Governor expresses the wish that this will be the last session of the legislature, to be followed by an election for the next session.

There are recommendations regarding the power of the Governor to designate, carve, instruct, and express the desires of the legislature. The Governor acknowledges the power of the legislature to fix salaries of judges, also basis for determination of the judiciary of the state of one of its ablest and most distinguished. He expresses strong faith in the recommendations of the judiciary.

The Governor recommends an inquiry into the causes of the present waste and extravagance. He asks the legislature to consider the proposal that the state give a large sum to the magazine for the support of the press. He asks the legislature to consider the proposal that the state give a large sum to the magazine for the support of the press. He asks the legislature to consider the proposal that the state give a large sum to the magazine for the support of the press.

In a recent statement of the Rev. Henry Knight of the Grover's message, Governor Miller has an interesting, instructive story to tell in recording the transactions of the last session of the legislature, and in laying the way to the new session. The expenditures of the state government give a vivid idea of the great work that the state is doing. The Governor expresses the hope that this will be the last session of the legislature, to be followed by an election for the next session. It is shown that the state is now living within its income, and the Governor expresses the wish that this will be the last session of the legislature, to be followed by an election for the next session.

There are recommendations regarding the power of the Governor to designate, carve, instruct, and express the desires of the legislature. The Governor acknowledges the power of the legislature to fix salaries of judges, also basis for determination of the judiciary of the state of one of its ablest and most distinguished. He expresses strong faith in the recommendations of the judiciary.

The Governor recommends an inquiry into the causes of the present waste and extravagance. He asks the legislature to consider the proposal that the state give a large sum to the magazine for the support of the press. He asks the legislature to consider the proposal that the state give a large sum to the magazine for the support of the press. He asks the legislature to consider the proposal that the state give a large sum to the magazine for the support of the press.

In a recent statement of the Rev. Henry Knight of the Grover's message, Governor Miller has an interesting, instructive story to tell in recording the transactions of the last session of the legislature, and in laying the way to the new session. The expenditures of the state government give a vivid idea of the great work that the state is doing. The Governor expresses the hope that this will be the last session of the legislature, to be followed by an election for the next session. It is shown that the state is now living within its income, and the Governor expresses the wish that this will be the last session of the legislature, to be followed by an election for the next session.

There are recommendations regarding the power of the Governor to designate, carve, instruct, and express the desires of the legislature. The Governor acknowledges the power of the legislature to fix salaries of judges, also basis for determination of the judiciary of the state of one of its ablest and most distinguished. He expresses strong faith in the recommendations of the judiciary.

The Governor recommends an inquiry into the causes of the present waste and extravagance. He asks the legislature to consider the proposal that the state give a large sum to the magazine for the support of the press. He asks the legislature to consider the proposal that the state give a large sum to the magazine for the support of the press. He asks the legislature to consider the proposal that the state give a large sum to the magazine for the support of the press.