"WORLD'S MOST BEAUTIFUL BRIDGE" Dedication Rites Set Tomorrow For George Washington 2nd Deck

By BILL BENDER

For 17 years, the George Washington Bridge has been the world's finest river span. But tomorrow, the dedication of the 2nd Deck will herald a new era of transportation on the historic span. The new deck will be opened to traffic at 9 a.m., and will provide a much-needed capacity boost.

The 2nd Deck is a modern marvel of steel, conjured by Othmar H. Amman. The bulk of the construction was added years ago, but it now handles 38 million people a year.

By the end of the century, the bridge will be a true modern-day miracle of steel, conjured by Othmar H. Amman. The bulk of the construction was added years ago, but it now handles 38 million people a year.

The bridge has seen its fair share of famous passengers over the years, including President George Washington, who traveled across the bridge to New York City.

The cost of the expansion has been $200 million, compared with the $4 million it took to build the bridge in its original form in 1919. The bridge now has a length of 2,400 feet and a width of 394 feet.

The bridge was designed by George Washington, and was built by the New York City Department of City Works. The bridge was opened to traffic on May 25, 1956, and has since become a symbol of American engineering.

In celebration of the bridge's dedication, the city will host a special ceremony tomorrow morning. The ceremony will feature speeches, music, and a parade of cars and trucks.

The dedication of the 2nd Deck is a historic moment, marking a new chapter in the history of the George Washington Bridge. The bridge has remained a symbol of American ingenuity, and its dedication is a testament to the city's commitment to transportation.

The 2nd Deck will be dedicated at 9 a.m., and will be open to traffic for the first time. The ceremony will include speeches from dignitaries, including Mayor John D. Vassallo.
